It is entitled "You Retnember Ellen" adapted from Tom Moore's famous poem of the same name. It is distinctly a story of the heart, and tells of the stranger William, who weus, and wins the hand of pretty Ellen the pride of the little Irish hamlet. For a time they tell together on the little home plot, and finally William feels that they must seek their fortune elsewhere, so learshally William feels that they must seek their fortune elsewhere so lear-fully Ellen leaves the old home and folks, and, like the poem, "thru sun and rain," they struggle on resuling over night by the roudside until, at length, they reach the site of a beau-siful castle. Her face is sweet, and her brow is fair, The golden light in her sunny hair; Soft are her tingers with rosy tips, Luliables flow from her loving life. Again I sleep in my trundla-bed.
The stars peep in on my flaxen head;
My playmate purra in a monotone
And pillows her head beside my own,
While mother tucks me in.

Once more I sleep 'neath the ruette Where ratter and shingle make warp and woof. Over my head sings the dancing rain. Splashing away at the window pane. A loving step on the creaking floor.
A loving hand on my brow once more.
Charming away from my schoolbey brain
Its fancied burden of grief and pain,
As mother tucks me in.

Homeward again from a faraway shore, Visiting boyhood's haunts once more. Rearing the scars of mankood's strife; Worn with fighting the battle of life. Sleeping again in my boyhood's had. Boothed by the pattering rain o'er my head. The twittering swallows in chimney

And fullaby songs of eventide. Once more the step on the creaking Telling the story of life's rough storm Sweet are the words from the feeble

Last night as I slept in foreign land I felt the touch of my mother's hand. On my wrinkled brow and looks of gray. Charming each sorrow and grief away. Smoothing the folds of my lonely bed. Soothing the pillow beneath my head. And boyhood's dreaming came back At touch of the hand from silent shore.

Was it a dream? I fittle know
How angel messongers come and go.
But feel the comforting joy they bring
And hear the rustle of angel wing
As mother tucks me in.
—Jeff Cushing Gallison.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Miss Birdie, how do you like the sport of automobile scorching?" "I think it is just killing." "Paps, just one more question. Who's going to bury the last man?"—Every-body's Weekly. "Mary, where is that chicken ple I told you to heat up for me?" "Well, mum, you told me to heat it up and I 'ave heaten it up!"

"What will be fashionable this spring?" "Whatever they happen to be overstocked with in Paris, I sup-"There is one trade in which a mar needs a soft, low voica," "What' that?" "When it's a speak-easy,"

"That photographer manages his business in a queer way" "How so do you mean?" "He has standing rules for all his sittings." Wife—I really believe you married me simply because I have money. Hub.—You're wrong. I married you be-cause I thought you'd let me have some of it.

Mother-Willie, have you eaten all that candy without even thinking of your little sister? Willie-O, no, ma. I was thinking about her the whole time, afraid she'd come before I had finished. Misa Snowflake-"Yo" beau am yery litrary sort o pusson. Miss Johnson—'Yais, it runs in de fambly, He says his gran father was one ob de six bos' sellers in slavery days."— "That's a smart thing I've done." said the doctor to his assistant. "What is that, doctor." "I have put my signature in the column 'cause of death' in this doath certificate."—Tit-Bits. Mrs. de Mover-Good gracious! This is the noisiest neighborhood I ever gol into. Just hear those children screech Maid—They're your own children, mum. Mrs. de Mover—Are they? How the little darlings are enjoying them-selves.—Tit-Bits. "How is the market this morning?"

mostly girls. It was probably through absent-mindedness that he replied.
"Bonbons and violets steady. Easter bonnets firm."—Washington Herald.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE The demand for Colonel Roosevelt so far hus not kept pace with the supply.

-Los Angeles Times.

Housewives should take notice that it is now illegal for women to work more than ten hours per day. Colonel Rossevelt will take up in his southern four "subjects that he has not touched," but what subject has the Colonel left intact?

"An eminent New Englander who has been as close to the Colonel as anyone can be" said of the anti-Taft utterances of Mr. Roosevelt: "It is horrible." That sounds like Semator Lodge, and the description fits him. Chicago packers "see era of good celling," says a news despatch. What the average man would like to see is an "era of good feeding" at not 100 high a price—New York Herald. Colonel Bryan said much the same things to the Ohlo constitutional con-vention as Colonel Roosevelt said, but he failed to get as much notice for them.—New Bedford Standard.

"The people have not suffered, says one of the beef trust jurors in defending the verdiet of not guitty. But this was a question which Judge Carpenter Illinois now can claim to be the most gallant of states. There is a bill pending in the legislature of that state relieving a woman on the witness stand from the obligation of telling her stact number of years, it being sufficient for her to state that she is of legal age.

In his Chicago Auditorium speech Colonel Roosevelt said: "If they play with marked cards, it doesn't go!" an this be the same Roosevelt who a few weeks ago was so foundalized by a ret-erence to politics as a "game"
